Teasing/taunting

1. Allows the teaser and person teased to swap roles.
   2. Isn't intended to hurt the other person.

Verbal taunts are especially hurtful, particularly when targeted kids feel someone is watching. Sometimes the taunted child is uptight and can't relax long enough to think. Kids are watching. It can be acce- mented to limit the status of the bullied child as a partner in the game.

Beating the script

1. In some cases, parents or teachers want to change the script. It's in the interest of everyone—whether they are victims or bullies—to work on the problem.

Caring schools

1. Establish clear school behavioral expectations.
2. Treatment for bullies is non-violent, consistent, and immediate.
3. Leverage peer groups and discourage noise.
4. Let information about bullying be spread.

Threats/sexual bullying

4. Is intended to express control and domination.
5. Is only a small part of any child's experience of bullying.
6. May involve verbal taunts or written threats.
7. Is intended to hurt.
8. Is based on an imbalance of power and uncomfor- able and demeaning.

Sexual bullying is often expressed in health and in control.

Attention to the problem is important. In public schools, bullying is a serious problem. Students, teachers, and others need to work on the problem.

Teasing/taunting

1. Is intended to hurt.
2. Is discontinuous bullying.
3. Is intended to make someone feel inferior.
4. Is based on an imbalance of power and uncom-
Bullies come in all shapes and sizes. Some are big; some are small; some bright and some dull. Some are born to bully, while others—most—learn it. They might believe they are invincible, that bullying is normal, that it's their right. They are the bullies.

The Bully

- The bully is a person deemed not worthy of respect or care, a person who disrespects and abuse another.
- They use hurtful or demeaning language, and thus the recipient of bullying ismphased or ignored becomes a contagion that infects their peers and way of thinking.
- They are the support group, the organization, the board office and if necessary—especially in the cases of serious abuse—to the police.
- They are the supplier of the lie—and the impact the bullying has for the victims and those who fight.
- They are often bullying g kids to fight back.
- They are the supplier of the lie—no one will help them.
- They are the supplier of the lie—they bully too.
- They are the supplier of the lie that bullying is a necessary part of growing up, or that is normal, or that victims have to look elsewhere for help.
- They are the supplier of the lie that bullying can be stopped, or that the bully will be given the chance to change.
- They are the supplier of the lie that bullying is a form of self-defense, or that it's the bully's way of doing things.
- They are the supplier of the lie that bullying is a way to express their feelings, and to stand up to any adult they are ashamed of.
- They are the supplier of the lie that bullying is a way to show their friends that they are smart, that they are capable, that they are not alone in this.
- They are the supplier of the lie that bullying is a way to show their friends that they are smart, that they are capable, that they are not alone in this.
- They are the supplier of the lie that bullying is a way to show their friends that they are smart, that they are capable, that they are not alone in this.
- They are the supplier of the lie that bullying is a way to show their friends that they are smart, that they are capable, that they are not alone in this.
- They are the supplier of the lie that bullying is a way to show their friends that they are smart, that they are capable, that they are not alone in this.
- They are the supplier of the lie that bullying is a way to show their friends that they are smart, that they are capable, that they are not alone in this.
- They are the supplier of the lie that bullying is a way to show their friends that they are smart, that they are capable, that they are not alone in this.
- They are the supplier of the lie that bullying is a way to show their friends that they are smart, that they are capable, that they are not alone in this.
- They are the supplier of the lie that bullying is a way to show their friends that they are smart, that they are capable, that they are not alone in this.